GRAND KNIGHT'S CORNER

MERRY CHRISTMAS,

Wishing all of the Fr. O'Neill family the warmest and best greetings and hoping that all enjoy the true feast and wonderment that is Christmas . . . is there any greater vision than that of the tender newborn Christ! Modern times have placed Baby Jesus as an after thought, relative to the importance of selecting the right purchase or creating our own selfish wish lists. We as Knights, specifically at Fr. O'Neill, have decided to take the road less traveled by "KEEPING CHRIST IN CHRISTMAS!"

Many worthwhile programs come from the Supreme Council and perhaps the best is the Keep Christ in Christmas campaign. Well, it is alive and well at Fr. O'Neill! We presented our Christmas cards and offered our poster contest at Immaculate Conception School, both of which were very well received. I hope that we will have a State Council winner from Immaculate.

The Council has received a gift of four new members Mike Hipolto, Dan McClure, Maurice Rozario, and Glenn Thuman. We all welcome these new brothers and their families and look forward to getting to know and work with all of them. These men all bring various talents to the Council and I encourage all to reach out

CHAPLAIN'S COUNSEL

Well, it is the Christmas season again. We scurry around shopping, baking, cooking, planning parties and get together with family and friends. We look forward to once again celebrating the miracle of Jesus Christ, mighty God and Lord of all, coming to live as one of us in all ways save sin so that we might live as He does with the Father and the Spirit. He comes to us as a baby . . . an innocent, vulnerable infant.

I have often wondered what would happen if Jesus were to come to us today as that innocent babe . . . would He even be born? His chances wouldn't be nearly as good today as they were back then. Let us this year celebrate Christmas as the Christmas of Life . . . of cherishing all life, from the unborn to the elderly.

If you have not yet made your contributions to the Christmas Basket fund, there is still time to do so . . . consider too, a contribution of time or money to the pregnancy center that we support.

May the baby of Bethlehem enter upon your lives in a new and refreshing way this year and may He smile upon each of you and give you peace.

Deacon John

DISTRICT DEPUTY'S NOTE

Time flies if you are enjoying what you are doing. It is almost the sixth month of the fraternal year. You hardly notice the time going by when you are busy helping the church, community, and family.

Thanks go out to the Brother Knights who did an excellent job in escorting and guiding the guest on November 4th at the Basilica.

There was a big turn out of the Color Corps on November 12 at the Basilica, when Bishops all over the country came in for the inauguration. The weather was windy, chilly and raining but the event was still a success. Thanks to all Sir Knights who participated.

This month is a time of giving and sharing. Show your spirit of the holidays by helping a family in dire need. Adopt a family for the Christmas Holiday or donate toys, clothes or food to a charity or organization.

Keep up the good work on the recruitment of new members and the Shining Armour Award Program. We are half way to meeting our goals in recruiting. Remember to inquire if he is a member of the Knights of Columbus. If he is not a member, explain the charitable work of the Knights of Columbus.

PROGRAM ACTIVITIES

DIRECTOR'S NOTES

The October-November period at our Council was quite active. Our Family Director conducted a Halloween Party which was most successful in that forty youngsters were present along with their parents. Although scary, everything went well.

Not so successful was the fifth Sunday Communion breakfast. Only twelve people participated in the breakfast which was held at the council home. Ken and Rosemary LaMacchia did a tremendous job preparing for a much larger group. Thank you, Ken and Rosemary for your preparations.

The Memorial Mass at the Dulaney Valley Memorial Gardens was well attended. Father Matt made it on time for the celebration of the Mass. (By 3 minutes) Thank you Father. Very few people returned to the Council home for refreshments. Warden Bob Woolley did a tremendous job getting the necessary food, desserts and light refreshments together. Bob we thank you for your patience and understanding. We certainly have enough food left over for a couple of meetings.

Don't forget the Council Christmas Party on Wednesday the 19th and the Children's Christmas party on the 22nd. See details in this letter for these affairs.

It looks like December 31 is another opportunity for a 5th Sunday get-together. If our Church Director decides to have another try, let's get out to support the activity.

Bill Santo, PGK

COMMUNITY ACTIVITIES

The bicycle drive at St. Francis parish resulted in a large quantity of bikes and children's books. Most of the bikes were worked on and delivered to St Gregory's the Great Parish and St Bernadine's Parish in Baltimore city. The children's books were delivered to Our Daily Bread (ODB) Catholic Charities in Baltimore. The children's books were welcomed by ODB. The children who are served there at ODB can take the books with them. So, ODB is always in need of books.

The Children's Halloween party was well attended. A good time was had by both the children and the parents. Pictures are on the Fr. O'Neil web site.

All Souls Memorial Mass at Dulany Valley Memorial Gardens was well attended. Refreshments were available at the Council home after the Mass.

December's schedule includes the children's Christmas party and the Council's Christmas party. This is the time to adorn your home with the Advent Wreath and be sure to Keep Christ in Christmas. One of the Christmas season be sure to create your own Advent Calendar. Encourage your Children to give gifts made by them for the children at ODB. Bring them to the council home before December 9th, when they will be delivered. Other activities to participate in; visit hospital and nursing homes during the Christmas season, volunteer to work in a soup kitchen, buy Christmas cards with religious themes, join your brothers at the Council home for the first Tuesday lighting, at 8pm, of the nativity scene "Light Up For Christ".

Bob Woolley, Community Activities Director

The Origins of American Democracy Part 2: Christianity and the Enlightenment

Christianity shaped the worldview of those who established this nation. Americans in the 18th century were, by and large, practicing Christians — Methodists, Episcopalians, Calvinists, Puritans, Quakers, Congregationalists, Unitarians. They were well acquainted with the Bible and its teachings, which they referred to frequently in their writings and speech. Christianity provided those who established this nation with a common moral consciousness that shaped their thinking on temporal and secular matters, allowing them to agree upon fundamental principles to develop a democratic government.

The Founding Fathers understood the necessity of a moral basis for the continuance of a democracy, as the character weaknesses and self-interest of men were obvious – even among themselves. John Hancock, who served as president of the Second Continental Congress that declared this nation’s independence, was a convicted smuggler. Benjamin Franklin was a known philanderer. George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, and many other of these early Americans, were slave owners. Samuel Adams incited the Boston Tea Party in which private property was destroyed to make a political point. A form of government in which power was vested in the people could only survive if the citizenry was virtuous. The greatness of the Founders was in creating a governmental structure that distributed power and provided checks and balances to deal with venality, self-interest and radical desires of men.

Christianity instilled in them a belief in an omnipotent God who oversees the affairs of men, universal moral laws that transcend those of mankind, the dignity, worth and equality of the individual who is made in God’s image, the primacy of inner values over external ones, the immortality of the soul, and divine justice after death with reward and punishment meted out based on one’s actions in life. These tenets were reflected in the fundamental documents of this nation: the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, the Bill of Rights.

In his Farewell Address from the Presidency, George Washington stated, “Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensable supports.” Benjamin Rush, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, stated that “the only foundation for a useful education in a republic is to be laid in Religion. Without this there can be no virtue, and without virtue there can be no liberty.” Even Thomas Jefferson, a deist with no professed religious affiliation, recognized the importance of religion to shape the behavior of the populace in a democracy. He stated, “Of all the systems of morality, ancient or modern, which have come under my observation, none appear to me so pure as that of Jesus.”

The 18th century saw an increase in an exclusive application of reason to the development of political economy, government, and science. Many traditional ideas such as the Divine Right of Kings, hereditary status, and rights based on social class were challenged and replaced by an emphasis on freedom, justice, and tolerance. There was an evolving understanding that certain individual rights pre-existed the state, that government exists to protect those innate rights, that a constitution should protect individual autonomy from other individuals and governmental power, and in private property. Society was viewed as an implicit social contract between the state and its citizens regarding the rights and responsibilities of each. John Locke, one of the most influential of the 17th century Enlightenment philosophers, argued that a government could only be legitimate if it received the consent of the governed and protected the natural rights of life, liberty, and estate. If such consent were not given or if the leaders

FRATERNAL BENEFITS

“Do You Own a Business?”

Most businesses in the U.S. are small family-run sole proprietorships or partnerships. In many cases, the owner is the business. The owner runs the day-to-day operations and is the person who has developed the contacts that bring in the business.

The problem is when a business owner dies. Since he was the business, chances are bleak to sell the business as a going concern. The surviving widow and children most likely can't run the business, so the income stream stops!

At the K of C ... we have a business continuation program. At your death, we continue sending your family a set monthly income for anywhere from 10 to 30 years. You name the amount. Some brother knights have set up monthly incomes of $4,000 a month and some all the way up to $15,000 a month. It depends on what life-style you want to continue for your family.

Let's discuss your situation. Let the K of C "buy" your business.

and make them feel welcome!

There is no more precious gift than LIFE! We are on the front lines for LIFE and are willing to fight the pure evils of abortion and euthanasia. Think about mankind for a minute, how many St. Augustine's, Pope John Paul II's, Fr. McGivney's or Mother Theresa's come around. Not to mention all those with great scientific and political minds that have changed the course of humanity for the better! How many of these bright minds have been extinguished? I ask all to keep praying and making your voices heard to end these barbaric practices. As a counter note, my wife Julie and I are pleased to announce that we are expecting our fourth child. I ask for your prayers for Julie and our new blessing.

How many times have you asked someone to join the Council and they say that they would love to but do not have the time. Well, I certainly do not have the time and I am charged with running the whole thing! I find the time for two reasons, 1) I firmly believe in our mission as Knights and 2) I love being a member! So the next time you hear that response let me talk to them! We as a Council are really moving in the right direction and I thank all who have helped and continue to help. The World needs us and the Church needs us to stand strong and be willing to take positions that are not always easy but they are the right ones.

Lastly, I thank God everyday for allowing me to be part of Fr. O'Neill and ask him to bless and guide all of us to do His will. I look with great hope to the coming new year and all the greatness and promise that it will bring.

Merry Christmas,

betray the agreements implicit in the sovereign-subject relationship then the people have a right to overthrow their leaders. This gave rise to the belief that America should be formed as a republic in which sovereignty is invested in the people, rather than in a hereditary elite.

With these concepts in mind, this nation’s founders sought to replace the omnipotent rule of a monarch with government based on reason and on the will of the people. Thomas Paine in Common Sense asserted that King George III failed to protect the rights of colonists and hence a revolution was justified. When Thomas Jefferson drafted the Declaration of Independence, he included a litany of “Injuries and Usurpations” committed by the King as a justification for severing all political bonds with Great Britain. These ideas also formed the philosophical basis for the arguments presented in the Federalist Papers which proposed creating a form of government that would balance individual liberty with community order. These early Americans recognized that conflicts would inevitably arise as a result of differing self-interest among the States and among individuals, and that the best way to preserve the rights of people was to place power in the hands of the people through a central government. The result is a uniquely American political philosophy of government, practical in nature, founded on experience, rooted in developments that began in classical Athens and ancient Rome, tempered by the Enlightenment, and based on the beliefs of a particular religious tradition.

In the tumultuous global discord of today, open, honest and fruitful dialogue between American democracy and other world cultures can only occur if this nation maintains the moral basis for its culture, which is rooted in Judeo-Christian principles.

PUBLIC RELATIONS

“Look for the good, praise it and share” —that is a good bit of what publicity and public relations for Columbianism activities are about.

Helping others; there is a story about President Thomas Jefferson — He was travelling horseback with associates, when they came to a ford in a river where a bridge had been washed away. They had to cross on horseback. As they began to cross, a lone rider asked Jefferson if he would help him across. When they arrived on the other side, Jefferson’s associates asked the lone traveller if he knew who Jefferson was and why he asked him to help? “No”, the stranger replied, “but he appeared to be a gentleman with a ‘Yes look’ on his face.”

That is what an involved Knight is in his demeanor and actions.
